TRAINING COURSE FOR MARCH, PARADE AND PROTEST STEWARDS

The Scottish Government is funding the Centre for Good Relations, to deliver a training programme for stewards in Scotland. The training is available free of charge.

The training is available to anyone who is involved in stewarding marches, parades and protests. The training will build the capacity of organisations facilitating these events to plan, prepare and run marches, parades and protests in a safe and professional manner, with particular focus being on public and personal safety as well as risk management.

The training will be made up of four sessions:

- Session One: The Law And Best Practice In Relation To Marshalling
- Session Two: Public And Personal Safety And Risk Management
- Session Three: Planning And Preparation Of Events/Parades And Gatherings
- Session Four: Community Relations And Conflict Prevention, Management

If you would like to undertake this steward training opportunity please reply via the email address below with an expression of interest including:

- The name of your organisation/group.
- Your contact details (we anticipate correspondence will be done primarily by e-mail).
- The estimated numbers for places you would like to have. (A single course can accommodate upto 30 places).

We will then contact you with further information. Please feel free to forward this on to any relevant parties as this opportunity is open to any groups organising and taking part in marches, parades and protests including those that already have internal steward training.

Finally, you may be interested to note that the Centre for Good Relations also runs Conflict Awareness training and this runs parallel to, and complements, the steward training programme. If you are interested in this training you can find out more here: http://centreforgoodrelations.com/training-courses/conflict-awareness/.

Yours Sincerely,

Abdul Rahim
